

Music and Living a Full life

Posted At : February 12, 2012 8:47 PM | Posted By : Administrator

Related Categories: General

As many of you heard on the news today, Whitney Houston passed away this weekend. The sadness and the feeling of what could have been I have difficulty shaking when thinking of this amazing artist. Who can forget that national anthem at the Super Bowl in 1991? It was pitch perfect both in performance and timing for what our country needed at just that time.

I hope she has finally found the peace that was sorely lacking in her life this past few years. I also hope this serves as a wake-up call to those that need to remember the impact that a life can suffer from some decisions on how to live it.