

Remarkable FAMILIES

Building Resiliency
in Families Raising Children with Special Needs

FRIDAY, APRIL 3 | NOON TO 8:30 P.M. | CINTAS CENTER

college of social sciences,
health, and education

XAVIER UNIVERSITY

Raising children with special needs is a tough job.
But it can also be very rewarding.

A CHANCE TO NETWORK

Xavier University and the College of Social Science, Health, and Education are offering a symposium for Tri-state parents who are raising children with special needs.

The purpose of the symposium is to provide parents with information, resources and networking opportunities in an effort to build family resiliency and learn to not only survive—but to thrive.

THE DAY INCLUDES

- Cincinnati Enquirer columnist Paul Daugherty speaking about his own family's experience.
- Ruth Smith, essayist, presenting on writing to work through the frustrations of parenting.
- A resource fair of vendors with books, videos and CDs for sale.
- Lunch, dinner, music and a film plus several workshops addressing the issues of schools, IEPs and agency services.
