HEALTHCARE SIMULATION

Class of 2019 members, our first-year MHSA students, attended a Healthcare Simulation day on Friday, February 24, 2017. Guided by MHSA faculty members Dr. Karen Kent and Mr. Tom Ruthemeyer, these students spent the day at Xavier’s Center for Innovation under the direction of Dr. Tom Merrill, CFI director. The day revolved around various healthcare case studies and the use of interactive computer modules that set the stage for each case, presented the facts of each case from various viewpoints of persons affected, afforded the students opportunities to make decisions about the situations facing them, and provided instant feedback as to the quality of the decisions the students made.

Dr. Tom Merrill, director of Xavier’s Innovation Center, explains the computerized simulation healthcare decision-making exercise with Bailey Niekamp ’19M, participating at the whiteboard.

First year Class of 2019 members took part in the simulation: (standing) Andrew Blum, Sean Kerber, Daniel Brock, Amber Sain (sitting) Kellen Sorensen
