POST-MASTER’S CERTIFICATE PROGRAM: CLINICAL NURSE LEADER

The clinical nurse leader role is a national initiative developed by the American Association of Colleges of Nursing (AACN) in 2004 to address fragmentation in health care delivery. The CNL role is a proactive, integrative and comprehensive role that assists direct care providers in bringing the best of health care science and practice to the point of direct patient care. Students who choose the MSN Clinical Nurse Leader (CNL) track will be prepared to meet the health care needs of a growing population requiring complex care. This post-master's program is designed for the registered nurse with a previous MSN who wishes to complete CNL coursework, obtain an official Xavier University transcript and be eligible to take the CNL certification exam. Additional information on CNL role: www.aacn.nche.edu/CNL

CNL OBJECTIVES
1. Apply the art and science of nursing to the role of the clinical nurse leader at the point of care
2. Communicate effectively across health care disciplines
3. Ensure quality and safety in health care delivery
4. Implement and coordinate the best practice at the point of care and across settings
5. Integrate knowledge of nursing theory, research, epidemiology, informatics, ethics, health care policy, economics, healthcare finances and leadership into the management of healthcare delivery
