Xavier University Library Collection Development Policy

Collection Development Overview

The goal of collection development is to maintain a collection of library materials that supports the needs of the university community. The collection consists of a wide range of resources which include print, electronic, audiovisual, and multimedia materials.

The library's collections directly reflect and support the mission and goals of the university. To this end, the library's collection development program focuses on acquiring materials needed by students to meet curricular needs, materials needed by faculty to conduct classes and support their scholarly research, and materials needed by faculty and staff for carrying out the functions of their positions. Materials in the main library collection are generally college-level and scholarly in nature. Materials for teacher education such as school textbooks and the children’s literature collections reflect the appropriate level for those collections.

Collection Development Principles

- All materials purchased with library funds shall be housed in, or in the case of electronic resources, emanate from the University Library.
- Where multiple formats (electronic, print, microform, audio-visual, etc.) are available for a given item, the format selected should be the one that provides the greatest benefit in terms of access, ease of use, and perpetuity, to the library's users.
- Generally, only English language materials will be purchased with library funds except where a world language is the basis for an existing major (for example, Modern and Classical languages).
- All newly received library materials must be cataloged and processed before they can be taken out of the library. Exceptions may be made for faculty due to unusual circumstances.
- The library will abide by license agreements and copyright restrictions for all electronic materials, including ebooks, ejournals, streaming media, databases, and digital archives.

Intellectual Freedom Principles

In all cases, Xavier University Library staff members uphold, among others, the following American Library Association's policies and statements:

- Library Bill of Rights
- The Freedom to View
- Intellectual Freedom Principles for Academic Libraries
- Code of Ethics
- Challenged Materials
- Evaluating Library Collections
- Privacy
- Policy of Confidentiality of Personally Identifiable Information About Library Users
- These and other policies and statements are available from the American Library Association (http://www.ala.org)

As long as materials fit within the general collection parameters of the library, all points of view and subjects will be considered without prejudice or censorship. The library staff ensures equity and freedom of access to information unimpeded by social or cultural barriers. To facilitate this access, arrangement of library materials is in accordance with standard library classification schemes. Placement of items on shelves is determined solely by the classification system employed and shelf space.

Faculty role in collection development

- The library’s primary communication with the faculty about library resources and services is through the library liaison program. Librarians work with academic departments to improve collections and to assist with resource selection for existing as well as new courses and programs.

- A portion of the library’s materials budget is reserved for faculty purchases; these funds are allocated to academic departments using a formula based on past spending patterns. Allocated funds that have not been spent by the deadline for faculty orders revert to the library’s general fund and may be spent on materials that are of benefit across the curriculum.

- Each academic department appoints a faculty library liaison who works with their librarian liaison and coordinates requests for library materials from the faculty in his/her department. These liaisons receive monthly budget updates and order summaries to help them monitor their departments’ allocations.

- Faculty are encouraged to submit requests for library materials; these requests are submitted through the faculty liaison to the library and reviewed by the library acquisitions staff to prevent duplication, and to establish preferred format and edition.

- Librarians participate as ex-officio members of the curriculum committees for the three colleges in order to stay abreast of new courses and changes in the curriculum that may require increased library resources.

- Librarians work with faculty in reviewing and updating the book & journal collections to ensure that the materials in the collections are up to date and regularly used.

Materials Budget

The materials budget supports the purchase of all formats designated in the collection development policy. The budget supports expenditures for the following:

- Firm orders and continuing resources to the extent that funding is available, with first consideration given to continuing obligations
- Binding of serials and monographs
- Purchase of materials for preservation of materials in Special Collections and University Archives

Award Winning Books

The library is enrolled in a program through which the library automatically receives a wide range of award-winning books for adults, young adults, and children. The adult’s award program includes Pulitzer Prizes, National Book Awards and National Book Critics Circle

Awards, as well as many specialized awards such as the Hugo Awards and the Edgar Awards. The children’s award program includes Newbery and Caldecott Medals; multi-cultural awards such as the Coretta Scott King and Tomas Rivera awards.

Demand Driven Acquisitions
The library has set aside limited funds to establish a demand driven acquisitions program. Through this program the library provides patrons access to a pool of electronic books selected according to a subject profile developed by the library. Fees for these books are only incurred when a patron makes use of the book and the book is only purchased after several patrons have accessed the book.

Institutional Repository
Through Exhibit, our digital repository, the library gathers, preserves, and provides access to the scholarship, creative works, and records of Xavier University. Guidelines for submissions are found here.

Criteria for Selection of Materials
The selection of materials for the library’s collections involves consideration of a number of factors, including:

- Importance of the subject in relation to the curriculum
- Currency and accuracy of information
- Timeliness and importance of information
- Author's reputation and significance
- Publisher reputation
- Availability of other material on the subject in the library, in other area libraries, and in print
- Recommendation in standard reviewing sources
- Price
- Language (English only is selected, except for those items selected to support the foreign language curriculum)
- Scope and depth of subject coverage
- Ease of use

Policies for Material Types

Monographs

- Paperbound volumes are generally preferred for library use when both formats are available because of significant savings in the cost of the materials. However, if the material is expected to be widely used and durability is a concern, then the hardcover edition may be preferable. If a quality paperback is available, it may be purchased and bound in lieu of purchasing a publisher-bound volume if the procedure is cost-effective.
- Out-of-print materials will be considered for purchase according to the same criteria used for in-print materials subject to this collection development policy.
- The library generally purchases or subscribes to electronic books as part of larger collections but also may purchase electronic books as individual titles at faculty request.
Xavier University Library Collection Development Policy

• If an instructor requests materials in electronic format (e-books or streaming media) and the library already owns the print book or dvd the requestor is notified. The library will purchase the duplicate in electronic format if requested.
• If an instructor requests materials in print or dvd format and the library owns the electronic version (e-book or streaming) the requestor is notified. The library will purchase the duplicate in print or dvd format if requested.

Reference Collection
• The reference collection is designed to meet the basic research, curricular, and information needs of the University community in all subject fields.
• Reference resources of all types and formats, in all appropriate languages are selected in accordance with the criteria established for the selection of library materials.

Reserve Collection
• The reserve collection is a collection of instructor-owned materials and materials owned by the library which have been separated from the larger collection for restricted use for students in particular courses.
• Most items in the reserve collection are placed on temporary reserve by faculty; the collection also includes materials designated by the library that are at high risk for theft.
• The library will generally purchase a library copy of an item to replace an instructor’s personal copy when appropriate.

Faculty Publications
• The library maintains a collection of active and emeriti faculty-authored monographs. Multiple copies are purchased and housed in faculty publications in the McDonald circulating collections as well as the President’s office.

Juvenile Collections
• The Juvenile Collections include juvenile and young adult monographs, selected juvenile serials, and appropriate non-print media. The purpose of these collections is to support the programs of the School of Education.
• Materials for the juvenile collection are purchased through an approval plan consisting of award winning juvenile books.

Textbooks
• The library acquires selected elementary and secondary school textbooks for the textbook collection in support of teacher education.
• Current course textbooks are not routinely acquired. Other textbooks are not acquired unless they are considered as definitive sources in the subject area.

English as a Second Language (ESL) Collection
• The ESL collection supports the academic needs of students in the ESL program.
• This collection includes books, media, and packages of books or videos with audio supplements.
• Audiovisual materials that have been purchased to support the ESL program are shelved with this collection instead of the general media collection to allow for browsing.

Leisure Reading Collection

- The library purchases popular books for leisure reading as funding allows. Requests for these materials are typically submitted by librarians based on lists of newly published books that are of general interest.
- Materials in the leisure collection are regularly reviewed; items that are no longer of current interest may be either moved to the general circulating collection or withdrawn, as appropriate.

Journals & Serials

- Preference is given to journals in electronic format, although all formats are considered in the library's purchase and/or access decisions.
- Faculty may submit requests for new journal subscriptions through their department library liaisons. The library will review these requests according to the criteria listed below.
- The library also gathers interlibrary loan statistics to identify highly requested journals and will consider subscribing to these journals if funding allows.
- Ordinarily, retrospective purchases of periodicals will be added in microform or in electronic media; retrospective periodicals in print will only be added to fill a gap in the existing collections.
- The retention schedule of general interest magazines (i.e. non-academic titles) and newspapers is determined on a case-by-case basis. Upon recommendation by a faculty member, change in the retention rate of a given title will be considered.
- Print copies of periodical issues duplicated by stable electronic resources will not normally be retained.
- Electronic journals that require an individual username or password instead of IP access will not be considered.
- Electronic journals that do not offer institutional subscriptions will not be considered.

Criteria for selection of journals

Faculty and librarians may request that the library begin a subscription to a journal at any time. The decision to begin a new subscription is based on the following factors:
- Relevance to the curriculum
- Cost of ownership compared to cost of access and availability of the material through document delivery services; factors to consider include price, cost of storage, delivery time, and demand
- Full-text availability through electronic means including the consideration of an embargo imposed by the publisher
- Professional reputation
- Indexing and abstracting in sources accessible to library users
- Scarcity or abundance of available periodical titles within the discipline

Criteria for cancellation of journals

Decisions regarding journal cancellations are made in consultation with faculty and involve consideration of the following factors:
- Relevance to the curriculum
- Usage
Xavier University Library Collection Development Policy

- Cost
- Full-text availability through electronic means including the consideration of an embargo imposed by the publisher

Newspapers
- The library maintains subscriptions to a limited collection of newspapers. These papers are generally retained for a period of 3 to 6 months and then discarded.
- The library maintains subscriptions to the microform editions of major newspapers and weekly magazines for archival purposes.

Popular magazines
- The library maintains subscriptions to a small number of popular magazines of interest to the general public. These are shelved separately from the main journal collection and are generally retained for 6 months.

Electronic Databases
- The library maintains access to a wide variety of electronic databases, including indexes & abstracts (many with full text of articles), primary sources, digital book and journal collections, etc., that support academic programs.
- Before beginning a subscription to a database the library will arrange for a trial to get feedback from librarians and faculty about the resource.
- The library will review the licensing and contract agreements to ensure that the library is able to abide by the contract and stay within copyright restrictions.
- The library also evaluates the software necessary to support the resource to ensure that the university can provide adequate technical support.
- When subscribing to an electronic resource where ownership (versus access only) is an option, a permanent (versus renewable) license will be explored, relative to financial feasibility.
- The library provides access to freely available online resources that meet the same selection criteria that has been established for online resources that are purchased or leased. Access to these freely available resources is provided through the online catalog, database lists, and subject guides.

Media
- DVDs are the format of choice for motion picture materials, unless VHS is the only format available. The library will purchase replacements for videocassette tapes that are currently in the collection with a DVD or streaming version when appropriate and available.
- A DVD copy may be made of a videocassette to protect the long term viability of the videocassette if the production of a copy is within copyright guidelines.
- If a DVD version of a videocassette tape is available for purchase, the library must purchase the DVD for a replacement. Making a DVD copy of a videocassette tape when a DVD version is commercially available violates copyright law.
- The library may subscribe to collection of streaming media or individual titles if the files are housed on the publisher’s server. The library does not house streaming media in house.
Xavier University Library Collection Development Policy

- In the case where a film is available in both DVD format and streaming formats, the requestor may specify the format of choice.
- For both DVDs and videocassette, the NTSC (North American format) is strongly preferred to the PAL (European) format. PAL formatted material will only be purchased if the material is not available in NTSC format.

Musical Scores & Music CD’s
- Musical scores and cd’s are acquired selectively as needed in support of the curriculum. The library also supports subscriptions to electronic resources that provide streaming audio content.

Computer software
- The library does not collect computer software programs, such as SPSS.
- Computer software for use by faculty, staff, and students is purchased and supported by the departments of Application Services and Infrastructure & Technology Support in the Division of Information Technologies.

Microforms
- New serial and newspaper microform subscriptions will only be considered in special circumstances.
- Major newspapers and major weekly journals and magazines that cannot be bound and do not have an exact digital replacement (.pdf file) may be purchased in microfilm or microfiche format.

Dissertations, Theses
- Graduate students and faculty may request that the library purchase a dissertation to support their research. These items may be added to the library's collections subject to the criteria as stated in this policy.
- The library provides access to undergraduate, masters and doctoral theses and dissertations from participating OhioLINK member schools through the Ohiolink Electronic Theses & Dissertation collection. This collection contains the abstracts of the theses and dissertations as well as the full-text if it was submitted.
- The library holds a collection of bound theses and dissertations published by Xavier graduate students in Psychology, English, History, and Theology. Each department maintains their own guidelines and procedures for the binding and disposition of these materials.

Special Collections
- Xavier University’s Special Collections consists of a broad range of materials that have been acquired over the years through donations and occasional purchases. The library does not actively collect materials for Special Collections, either through purchase or by soliciting gifts.
- Gifts to the library may be added to Special Collections if the materials are rare or fragile and the subject matter is deemed appropriate for the library’s collection.
- Books from the general collection may be transferred to Special Collections if deemed to be rare or valuable.

Approved by the Library Committee April 2015 Version 1 (mpf)
University Archives
- The University Archives are administered by the Archives Librarian and the Archivist. The Archives Collection Policy is available here.

Specialized Collections
- The library maintains several specialized collections that provide support for administrative areas that relate to the University’s mission.
- The library will consider the establishment of the specialized collection on a case by case basis, considering the potential benefits and drawbacks of separating specific materials from the general collection.
- Current specialized collections include:
  - Jesuit Identity Resource Center
    Established in conjunction with the Department of Mission and Identity. This is an active collection. The library may purchase additional copies of materials related to the university’s Jesuit identity that have been purchased for the general collection to add to this collection.
  - Ecumenical Resource Center
    Established in conjunction with the Brueggeman Center. The library is not actively purchasing for this collection but will accept gifts from the Brueggemen Center to add to the collection.
  - Dorothy Day Center
    Established in conjunction with Dorothy Day Center, which is now part of the Center for Faith & Justice. The library is not actively purchasing materials for this collection.

Gift Materials
Gift materials are subject to the same criteria for addition to the collection as purchased materials. The library reserves the right to accept or reject gifts, with or without restricting conditions, and the right to dispose of unwanted gift material.

Due to space limitations and preservation practices, the library does not normally accept the following materials:
- Textbooks
- Popular magazines (i.e. National Geographic, Smithsonian, etc.)
- U.S. government publications
- Books and scholarly journals which duplicate our holdings
- Materials in poor condition or exhibiting signs of mold or mildew
- Material that contains highlighting, underlining, or annotations (unless annotations are of significant scholarly value)
- Material in outmoded formats (e.g., videocassette tapes, cassette tapes)
- Electronic materials requiring dated software
Xavier University Library Collection Development Policy

- Materials which might cause the library to be liable for copyright infringement (i.e., illegally copied audio and video recordings, subscriptions to journals to which the library has not subscribed)

Materials purchased by faculty
- The library does not reimburse faculty for materials that were purchased outside the library without approval from the Head of Collection Development. A faculty member who intends to purchase materials at an event such as a conference should obtain approval in advance from the Head of Collection Development and will be reimbursed in the amount allocated for those purchases.

Retention guidelines

Books
- Previous editions of most books in the science disciplines will be withdrawn when a newer edition is purchased. Decisions on retention of previous editions of books in the humanities, social sciences, and business disciplines will be made on a case by case basis.

Journals
- The library has established guidelines for the retention of the print journal volumes that are available either electronically or in print at other Ohiolink libraries. These guidelines help ensure that the library’s collection consists of materials that are actively used.
  - Print volumes of journals that are available in electronic journal collections to which the library has permanent access (JSTOR, Ohiolink’s Electronic Journal Center) are not retained.
  - Print volumes of low use journals that are available at other Ohiolink libraries or depositories are not retained.

Deselection
Deselection is an essential, continuing library practice which provides quality control for the collection by withdrawing of outdated, inaccurate, and worn-out materials. Whenever possible, both faculty and library staff participate in this process to ensure that publications of historical or research significance are not discarded.

The same guidelines used for selection of library materials provide the criteria for de-selection. Physical condition, age of material, date of last loan, number of loans, number of copies in the collection, obsolescence of information, language of the material, coverage of the subject by other material in the collection, and availability of the material from other libraries are all factors that are considered.

Preservation and Conservation
The library endeavors to protect the physical integrity of materials in the collection through conservation measures such as temperature, humidity and dust control. Books in need of simple repairs will be repaired in house; materials that cannot be repaired in house will either be sent to the bindery or the item will be withdrawn and replaced. The acquisitions budget includes a small allocation for replacement books and media.
Xavier University Library Collection Development Policy

Replacements
Materials in various formats that are missing, lost or withdrawn are not automatically replaced. Potential replacements are evaluated using the same criteria for selection as regularly purchased items. Heavily used materials that are determined to be immediately necessary for teaching and research will be replaced as quickly as possible.

Lost or Damaged Items
Library materials which have been lost or damaged by patrons will be replaced if they are still available and considered appropriate for the collection as the budget allows. Patrons who are responsible for the loss or damage to the materials are charged for the item plus a processing fee.

Sustainability
The library makes a significant effort to recycle materials that have been withdrawn from the collection. These efforts include recycling print journal volumes, sending unwanted gift books to Better World Books, and donating books and media collections to the Friends of the Public Library of Cincinnati and Hamilton County for their annual book sale.

Collection Disaster Plan
The library maintains a disaster plan that designates procedures for the initiation of action should an emergency arise involving the library's collection. This document is currently being updated.
