

Creating the Ecovillage

Jim believes that the Ecovillage is where they have left the biggest mark because it is “walking the talk”—a way to live sustainably with few material possessions. While America’s present cultural norms revolve around economics and consumerism, the Ecovillage offers a way for people to live sustainably with the support of others dedicated to the same values. This support system allows people to be ecologically oriented and feel normal in a mainstream culture that values economics over ecology.
