What is transparency?

In the dictionary, one definition of “transparency” is something that is readily understandable. There is nothing in the way to keep you from seeing what is there. Today the term transparency is often used in discussions about healthcare. But what does that mean?

In the world of healthcare, transparency means having information about doctors and hospitals that is easy to access and easy to understand. With it, you can compare the estimated costs and quality of performance of healthcare products and service. In the past, you may have chosen a doctor based on a friend’s recommendation or picked a hospital solely because of location.

Now you can take a new approach when choosing healthcare providers. All the resources you need are in one place – MyHumana, your password-protected, personal home page on Humana.com.

Humana provides transparency resources to help you see …

- Which doctors are bilingual or have convenient office hours
- Which hospitals are considered leaders in certain areas, such as cancer treatment or heart procedures
- Where you can get the most effective treatment for the lowest cost

These resources include:

- Humana’s MyChoice Tools™ on MyHumana – for comparing physicians, hospitals and outpatient facilities
- Online pharmacy tools
- Planning resources and the SmartSummary quarterly health finance and benefits statement e-mailed or sent to members’ homes
- Health and wellness information on MyHumana
- One-on-one advice for members with information about ongoing or chronic health conditions

These resources are easy to find, easy to use, and – most important – backed by data you can trust.

How to use the doctor resources

To find doctor information, log in to MyHumana and click on Humana’s MyChoice Tools.
Select a physician to see estimated costs of an office visit, related pharmacy or drugs, and lab tests. You’ll also find some suggested questions to ask your doctor.

You’ll find suggested questions to ask your doctor.

Click on “Physician Details” for useful information about the practice, including doctor demographics, languages spoken and recognized such as the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA), and Maintenance of Certification. In addition, you’ll find office hours, phone numbers and maps.

There’s even a link to a map.

You can also find similar information about Outpatient facilities. From the MyChoice home page, select Compare Outpatient Facilities.

Start again from the MyChoice home page.
As with the doctor resource, enter your address information.

Select from outpatient surgery or diagnostics. Then choose from the list of conditions and procedures.

You'll see a list of outpatient facilities with related information. Discuss this information with your doctor to make an informed decision about your procedure.

Facilities, location, costs and ratings together in one list...
Then you'll see a list of hospitals with the number of patients who've had the procedure performed there, and the distance to the hospital.

By clicking on compare selected, you'll see a list of measures to compare.

Select "Create Report" and you'll see a summary with a range of costs and ratings for the effectiveness of these hospitals.

Compare estimated costs and see ratings
