XAVIER’S 11th ANNUAL HEALTH PROFESSIONS “TEAMING” EVENT

Our MHSA students joined Xavier’s other health professions students on Wednesday, March 20, 2019 for the afternoon interactive seminar, “Interprofessional Teaming for Dementia Care Student Symposium” featuring internationally-known occupational therapist and dementia care expert, Teepa Snow, who lives in central North Carolina.

More than 200 XU health professions students gathered in the CINTAS banquet room to learn more about contemporary strategies in care for the aging, to work in interprofessional teams on a case study to determine a care plan, and to have the opportunity to learn from faculty, community experts, doctoral psychology students, and each other. Xavier students were from Occupational Therapy, Nursing, Psychology, Social Work, and Health Services Administration. HSA faculty member Dr. Eddie Hooker continues on the planning team.

A quote from Teepa sums it up: “There are 120 forms of dementia. Until there’s a cure, there’s simply care. People use what faculties they have left, which tend to change, so don’t get frustrated in dealing with these persons.”
