ANOTHER RECOGNITION FOR XAVIER MHA

Xavier MHA is one of three programs nationally recognized for inclusion in the MHAOnline.com post called,
"Small Colleges with an Impressive Healthcare Administration Faculty".

Here's an excerpt from the recognition: "Students with a penchant for business management and a desire to work in the medical field might consider a career in healthcare administration. Becoming a healthcare administrator means learning the ins and outs of HR, management, policy-making, staffing, scheduling, budgeting, and medical records systems. As the American populace ages, nursing homes, retirement homes, hospitals, clinics, and research facilities will need expert healthcare administrators to oversee complicated daily operations. These professionals safeguard the health of the facilities by ensuring all of the systems are functioning smoothly.

So how does one join this high-growth career? Applying for a bachelor's or master's degree in healthcare administration is a solid start. And fortunately for students interested in enrolling in a more intimate setting with increased opportunities for one-on-one interactions and smaller class sizes, there are several top-notch schools with exceptional healthcare administration departments which can provide that experience.

This guide to three small colleges (<7,000 students) with an impressive healthcare administration faculty identifies 15 respected experts in the field, including their disciplines and practices."

The three universities selected are:

1. La Sierra University – Tom & Vi Zapara School of Business, a Seventh-Day Adventist Institution in Riverside, California
2. University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences in Little Rock, Arkansas and Fay W. Boozman College of Public Health
3. Xavier University, Department of Health Services Administration in Cincinnati, Ohio. Our faculty recognized are: Lin Guo, PhD, Eddie Hooker, MD, DrPH, Tom Ruthemeyer, MBA, and France Weaver, PhD.
