Dear Hiring Manager at XXX,

I am reaching out to express interest in your posting looking for a Product Designer at XXX. I believe I would be a valuable asset to your team. I have worked professionally in Graphic Design for 4+ years and have expertise in Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop and InDesign. I work diligently to keep up to date with design trends, practices and new technology. I am looking to utilize my critical eye and fierce passion for creating innovative and inspired works in a Graphic Designer role at XXX.

I have studied Graphic Design, first at XYZ University in Boston, Massachusetts and more recently at Xavier University in Cincinnati, OH. My decision to go back to school was informed by my passion to learn and continue to grow as an artist. My extended education as a graphic designer has allowed me to become a well-rounded creator as well as a team player. Since graduating, I have interned at the Cincinnati Zoo and established myself as a freelance designer for a variety of small brands.

The reason I was drawn to this position at XXX is...

Above all, I am passionate and driven. Once I sink my teeth into a project, I work diligently and cooperatively to solve problems and create design solutions that I am excited to share with the world. I firmly believe that every project, no matter the size, has something that I can get excited about.

I look forward to any opportunity to speak and discuss how my skills and personality would fit at XXX. I have included with my application, my resume and a link to my digital portfolio. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Paige Muskie
